Dear Friend of Jungle Friends Primate Sanctuary,

Wow! What a year it has been for everyone! Thanks to your generosity, all of the monkeys at Jungle Friends Primate Sanctuary are happy and healthy!

We are growing, one monkey at a time, and as always we are careful stewards of your donations to stretch them as far as possible.

Together, we can continue to care for the monkeys that are here, as well as give those on our waiting list a safe and forever home. I hope the monkeys can count on your continued support.

With your help, we will achieve remarkable things for the monkeys.

Peace in the New Year!

Kari Bagnall, Founder/Director

Our 2012 Success Stories Are YOUR Success Stories

Angel and Blondie

These two have been at Jungle Friends for a while, eyeing each other with interest. After a love-at-first-sight socialization, Angel and Blondie are enjoying their shared habitat — and enjoying each other’s company. Thanks to you!

ChiChi

ChiChi is a breast cancer survivor. Her life saving surgery was possible because of you, our kind supporters who give to our Memorial Medical Fund. Thank you for your support!

Annabelle and Frankie

We rescued Annabelle this year from a terrible hoarding situation. She has never had a monkey friend, so she was a little shy at first. But Frankie won her over and now they are great friends. They share a spacious habitat and spend most of their time grooming and playing.

Be sure to go to our Monkey Movies page on the website, JungleFriends.org, to watch their video “Young Love!”

KC and Bongo

KC came to us with her only friend — a mirror. For nearly 30 years, the only monkey KC knew was the one she could see in the mirror.

Bongo, KC’s new monkey friend, was stolen from his rainforest home and sold into laboratory research. Bongo lived in a small, sterile cage all alone for almost two decades until he was rescued by Jungle Friends Primate Sanctuary.

Now KC and Bongo are best friends, with a long, happy future together at Jungle Friends Primate Sanctuary — because of you.

KC and Bongo say thank you!
Meet our new staff members

Jungle Friends is all about the monkeys … and our staff makes sure of it!

In 2012 we launched a Capacity Building campaign, not only to be able to accommodate more monkeys at the sanctuary, but to work toward sustainability. Thanks to you it is becoming a reality!

The first step was to hire new staff, and we were lucky enough to find three great people!

Nicole Villella, Sanctuary Manager, recently completed her Zoo Technology degree at Santa Fe College, one of America’s leading zoo keeper programs.

Celeste Jensen, Executive Assistant, found us at the Animal Rights Conference in DC last summer. And are we glad she did! A committed animal rights advocate, Celeste is now Kari’s “right-hand-woman” and has already proven she can do just about anything from social media to feeding monkeys to keeping Kari organized.

Elizabeth Fried is our new Director of Development. A life-long animal lover, Elizabeth is working part-time keeping track of our financials, finding new sources of funds, and making sure we keep a laser-sharp focus on our fundraising goals.

Jungle Friends Primate Sanctuary is a family, and we are thrilled to have these new family members.

Nicole Villella, Sanctuary Manager, comforts Chi Chi as she wakes after her breast cancer surgery.

These and many other monkeys found a new life at Jungle Friends Primate Sanctuary. We try every day to make sure there is a home for the many other monkeys in need. Ours is always a race to find the financial support needed to build habitats to save more monkeys.
